She remembered all the shadows and the doubts, the same film

Vivid pictures like a wall that's standing empty and the night so still

Such a small affair, a relapse, someone closing like the nightclub

Here again and when you speak, I watch you move away and seem so

She is hoping to forget and the moment almost slips away
When the colours move apart and I wonder if you want to stay

And I need to change you like the words I'm reading, don't you understand
This the warning and the message, I remember as you touch my hand
