

Run for That Feeling

Deportees

I recall the summers and how they used to feel
The first time that I hurt you, the first time you hurt me
We used to be quiet, while we waited, sitting outside your door
I never really dared to ask you what we were waiting for

I remember the nights and the winters, we were walking in the snow
You were scared of your own visions, afraid that I was too slow
You really hated to be there and I pretended to agree
But honestly I wasn't certain if another world was for me

I got a call from your mother, she asked me if I heard
That the house that no one lives in has burned down back to dirt
You used to run on the rooftop, I watched you from the ground
You were in love with the attention, riding it for the crowd

Look at us now, two strangers in the other half of life
Do you still like The Pixies? Do you still fear the night?
Do you still laugh like you used to? The sun never left my soul
It was hard fought and triumphant, barely in control

I got away with some scratches, I heard you had it [?]
Oh, I'm not a man of violence, but the thought of that is too much
Oh, I wonder what they took, I wonder what you got to keep
And they're going for your dreams, I hope you hide them deep

We would run for that feeling
Something to believe in, we run for that feeling
We would run, run, run for that feeling
Something to believe in, we run for that feeling

You used to run for that feeling
You used to run for that feeling
