

Sixty Years Ago

Derek Ryan

A blessed candle burnin' lights her golden band
Her beads and book of prayers are resting in her hand
He pulls a chair beside her to sit with her a while
She turns her feeble body close to give him one last smile

As he held her wedding finger softly he did say
I remember when you said I do seems like yesterday
When you took my name that morning my heart did overflow
And I still feel the way I did sixty years ago

With a damp white cloth he soothes her his soulmate his best friend
Her suffering now is over he knows this is the end
She said they're here to take me it's time to say goodbye
One last breath a gentle kiss a tear falls from his eye

As he held her wedding finger softly he did say
I remember when you said I do seems like yesterday
When you took my name that morning my heart did overflow
And I still feel the way I did sixty years ago

As he held her wedding finger softly he did say
I remember when you said I do seems like yesterday
When you took my name that morning my heart did overflow
And I still feel the way I did sixty years ago
I still feel the way I did sixty years ago