

Already Gone

Devon Baldwin

I've been running from you
But I always seem to End up in the same place I was before
After all we've been through
Can it really be true?
Am I wrong to think that we've gone too far?
When I said if only
You had never told me
I didn't mean I wanted us to come undone
I've been acting coldly
You've been breaking slowly
Now I think it's time that we both moved on

Let our love come crashing
Into what we're running from
Cause it will surely collide
When the days start melting
Into nightmares calling us
Into the dark, we divide

It's about time that I let you go
Running round like we did before
Try to love but it's not the same
It's already, already gone
Time to let you go
Running round like we did before
Try to love but it's not the same
It's already, already gone

If it never feels new
Nothing left we can do
Do you really think we weren't who we are?
In between and too few
What else could we still lose?
Swear I never meant to start this war
Trigger shy and tongue-tied
Caught up in my white lies
Starting to believe in the things I don't Still I never thought I'd
Be the one left wide-eyed
Damn, I didn't think I'd be left alone

Let our love come crashing
Into what we're running from
Cause it will surely collide
When the days start melting
Into nightmares calling us
Into the dark, we divide

It's about time that I let you go
Running round like we did before
Try to love but it's not the same
It's already, already gone
Time to let you go
Running round like we did before
Try to love but it's not the same
It's already, already gone
