

The Prima Donna Gauntlet

Diablo Swing Orchestra

They'll tell you whatever, your will they won't bend
I am told there's a heaven, we're meant to ascend
But I'll shade the sun and I'll make them repent
Close the doors and pay the price for what's been done, what's been said

You've told me words, sometimes hard to believe
You keep closing your eyes, won't let nobody see
But I'll bury them all, and I'll bury them deep
For all the pain they have caused, and made you weep

And I break down inside
Every time I leave you behind
I'll save your dreams
I'll make them real
For as long as I breathe
In my wake, they will feel what they've done
And I break down inside
Every time I leave you behind
I'll save your dreams
I'll make them real
For as long as I breathe
In my wake, they will feel what they've done

Something will give and then something will break
Justice be served, and their world we'll unmake
They can save all their prayers 'cause they won't be heard
Their echo so hollow, excuses absurd
The will and the way how you came to be
Their silence is golden, so close being free
I'll be your beacon
A light you can see
I promise you're safe, I promise you'll heal

And I break down inside
Every time I leave you behind
I'll save your dreams
I'll make them real
For as long as I breathe
In my wake, they will feel what they've done
And I break down inside
Every time I leave you behind
I'll save your dreams
I'll make them real
For as long as I breathe
In my wake, they will feel what they've done

Repent...