

Ronnie Lee

Dionne Warwick

Here we are all alone
In the middle of the night
In a small cafe
Lit just by candlelight

Not one word have you said
No expression on your face
As you sit there staring
Somewhere into space
Treating me as if I'm taking
Someone's place

Oh, Ronnie Lee, you try so hard
To hurt a girl's feelings
Ronnie Lee, you're playing a part
Don't think I don't know it

Ronnie Lee, can't you see
That there's really no need
To play your part for me
Cause the image you portray
Is not the mean I see

There you sit, face aglow
As if touched by heaven's light
But you told me
That it's just the candlelight
Deep within there's a voice
Telling me it isn't so
That you're just afraid
To let your feelings show
But you're hiding something
I already know

Oh, Ronnie Lee, you try so hard
To hurt a girl's feelings
Ronnie Lee, you're playing a part
Don't think I don't know it

Ronnie Lee, can't you see
That there's really no need
To play your part for me
Cause the image you portray
Is not the mean I see

Oh, Ronnie Lee, you try so hard
To hurt a girl's feelings
Ronnie Lee, you're playing a part
Don't think I don't know it
