

Death Empress

Disembodied Tyrant

A scion obliged to our flesh
Relentless inner wrath
Bathed in moonlight, grave guardian
Matron of the dead, my death empress

Drift upon the shore of corpses
A gate to the world of darkness
The wolf and the serpent
Fill the ancient halls with blood
Hel shall reap it
Cower, my God, winter will surely come
Denial, my lord, cast your judgment

Splintered cracking
Under miles deep of ice
Shallow, short breaths harbor plague
That's yet to come

Kings weep before you, o' carrion flock
Bring forth your winter and let this end
(Let this end)

Awakened into a new reality
My flesh blistering, my consciousness wiped away
A hersir for the swarms of death
Thy will be done, to you I bide, my empress
Growing and growing
The numbers of unholy warriors we have amassed
As the end befalls, our wrath will cross the final bridge
Dawn of suffering has arrived

Damned into a life in the piercing cold
Oh, blessed matriarch of decay, bring forth your disease
We are gathered to witness the ending of times
Brought to life by gods of deceit and lies
By the prophecy, we will tear the skies open
Split the crust of the earth with our hatred
Witness the divine undivinity
A testimony to putridity

I shall bid thee
Welcome home (Oh, a-)
Pale face of death (Ah)