

Before The Line

dodie

I used to smile at every star and thank the sky
Now I look up to all the duds and wonder why
I feel like
All of them are gone
Can't feel a single one

And so I stretch my eyes across the land and sea
I know I loved the world, but now it's flat to me
Oh, tell me did someone snatch the light?
Why doesn't it look right?

I made a promise, but I break it every day
It's not my fault for I was promised just the same
Once I saw fire
And all I know
Is something happened
Did I let it go?

Now every morning since the line between my lives
I greet the sun and ask have I already died?
If not then
Why am I alone?
And when can I come home?

And I am lying when I say
It's time to let her float away
No, I'm still clawing for the strings
Oh, I'd do any fucking thing
I know I have to close the door
Too much to miss it anymore
I think that this really is it
I'll have to take what I can get
I'll have to take what I can get
What I can get

I made a promise, but I break it every day
It's not my fault for I was promised just the same
Once I saw fire
And all I know
Is something happened
Did I let it go?

I made a promise, but I break it every day
No, it's not my fault for I was promised just the same
Once I saw fire
And all I know
Is something happened
Did I let it go?
Once I saw fire
And all I know
Is something happened
Did I let it go?
