

From Out Of The Blue

Don Francisco

I was beat up by the blues so bad
Morning looked like midnight come too soon
Even on a starry night, all I could see
Was just the dark side of the moon
I was holding tight to my illusions
On the edge of the abyss
Acting like I had directions to the life that I had missed
When your touch lit up my soul
I didn't think such love and power could exist

And from out of the blue, you shone into my life
From out of the blue, you woke up my heart
From out of the blue, you opened my eyes
From out of the blue

Like a lifer in a dungeon
I'd accepted my existence underground
Even hope was just a memory from a page
Some withered sage had scribbled down
I was so bound up in the blues
That I was almost deaf and blind
If I heard the hinges turn, I didn't pay it any mind
Then you turned on all the light
And everything I knew of life was instantaneously

Completely redefined

From out of the blue, you shone into my life
From out of the blue, you woke up my heart
From out of the blue, you opened my eyes
From out of the blue

With the power of your resurrection
And a gentleness I'd never known
At my need and your love's intercession
You reached out and touched me
And made me forever your own

From out of the blue, you shone into my life
From out of the blue, you woke up my heart
From out of the blue, you took all of my fear
From out of the blue
From out of the blue
From out of the blue

From out of the blue, you opened my eyes
From out of the blue, you woke up my heart
From out of the blue, you shone into my life
From out of the blue
From out of the blue
From out of the blue
