

Life Weighs Heavy

Douwe Bob

I know this life weighs heavy on your shoulders
I know her words weigh heavy on your heart

And now you're wrapped into
The sweetest breath she drew
Before she shot a hole in your soul

It may take long, or even longer
Before these blues turn grey
But when you get there you'll be stronger
You won't need the shade
Think about, think about it
See the merits of your pain
Think about
Picture the sun when you're walking in the rain

I know the shame you felt when you called her
And told her that loved her from the start

And now you're wrapped into
The sweetest breath she drew
Before she shot a hole in your soul