

Dorian puts on a smile and he's out tonight
Dorian always forgetting what's out of sight
Every other weekend he's around in there
Old enough to know that he could die
But too young to care

Dorian puts on a smile & says I'm ok
Dorian felt alright but I couldn't say
Collectively we give our trust so foolishly
I never even bothered who was around before me

Dorian puts on a smile for my sister now
There's no hate in me for that
But I don't know how
Collectively we give our trust so foolishly
I never even bothered who was around before me

Dorian puts on a smile on his old face now
Dorian realizing he's had it now...

For good
