

Home Alone

Durand Bernarr

I could lean in any direction
And know that even if I fell
I wouldn't have to wait, no
Someone would already be there

I could lean in any direction
And know that even if I fell
I wouldn't have to wait, no
Someone would already be there

Someone would already be there
Someone would already be there
Someone would already be there
Someone would already be there...

I resigned from being strong
No need to push it on my own
When I have wind waiting
Beneath my wings to carry me on
Breathe life into me
When I couldn't breathe for myself
Made space to feel protected
Make my secrets expel

I could lean in any direction
And know even if I fell
I wouldn't have to wait, no
Someone would already be there

Someone would already be there
You would already be there
Someone would already be there
And you would already be there

I'll never be shamed embracing you
They have no idea what you through
To be who you are for me
And where I've been to get to you
Never once felt condemned
Didn't throw me away
You just inspired me
To improve each day

I could lean in any direction
And know even if I fell
I wouldn't have to wait, no
Someone would already be there

I could lean in any direction
And know even if I fell
I wouldn't have to wait, no
Someone would already be there

Someone would already be there
You would already be there
Someone would already be there
And you would already be there...

I don't know how it feels to be alone
Cause I've had you by my side
I've always had a place to call home
With you in my life
I'm never alone with you
Never alone cause of you
Couldn't Forget what alone felt like until you
And now...

I could lean in any direction
And know even if I fell
I wouldn't have to wait, no
Someone would already be there

I could lean in any direction
And know even if I fell
I wouldn't have to wait, no
Someone would already be there

Someone would already be there
You would already be there
Someone would already be there
And you would already be there
