Lonely Are the Free

Steve Earle

Lonely are the free 'Cause there ain't that many of them They don't walk like you and me

They just tumble in the breeze Lighter than a feather All together, separately

That's how it's s'posed to be
No matter where they wander
From post to in between,
From here to over yonder,
There's no place for them to land
Lonely are the free

The silent are the strong Not so much as a whisper Tells you anything is wrong

You've known all along, But you can't help but listen And now the moment's gone.

It keeps you hanging on Until the stillness signaling The breaking of the dawn, Is shattered by the sirens Singing sacrificial songs

The silent are the strong.

That's all they used to see
A violent shadow passing 'cross
The sun so fleetingly
That if you have to ask you miss it
Anyway you see
Lonely are the free
Lonely are the free
