The Spirit Will Remain

A Scent of rain A healing breeze Is blown into my face To feel desire

And raise my head To gaze at the sky And watch the setting sun Breaking through

The darkened clouds And I feel that I Am still alive and breathe For all the world to see

You can bind my blood But the spirit will remain For all the world to see No matter what you claim

The spirit will remain They want to see me down On my wounded knees want to see me cry

But my eyes Have run out of tears When there's nothing left to pay Just a little light of day

I got something You can't take away Fly away Fly away

Deep inside Shelter for my spirit and my pride For all the world to see You can bind my blood

But the spirit will be free Forevermore...
