

The Beginning

Eels

She put on her party dress
I put on my jacket and walked out the door

Didn't have nowhere to go Didn't matter that the night was getting cold

Pulled her closer to me
To keep her warm
And everything
was beautiful and free
In the beginning

She woke up late in the morning I pulled the curtain back
The sun came pouring in

There was no one in the world
There was nothing else
just me and my girl

She put her arms around me gave me a kiss
And everything
was beautiful and free
In the beginning
