

Where I Went Wrong

Electric Guest

Ooh, you say you love me, but you tear me apart
And I know the curtain's closing, and it's breaking my heart
And the time is moving slower, tide is getting lower
And now the bottom is clear

I'm just twenty-one miles deep under the sea
And your heart is underwater when you're looking at me
Oh, I know it's coming, turned it into nothing, I know it
Guess it's gone away

Tell me where I went wrong
I'm trying hard to hold on
I can't go back home, I guess I'm on my own

Ooh, you say you love me, but you're ready for war
'Cause it's hard to find a model they don't make anymore
Tide is getting stronger, heart is underwater
I feel it falling apart

Now I'm twenty-one miles deep under the sea
And I'd give you anything, but you don't want it from me
What are we becoming? Turned it into nothing, I know it
Guess it's gone away

Tell me where I went wrong
I'm trying hard to hold on
I can't go back home, I guess I'm on my own

Tell me where I went wrong
I'm trying, but I know it's gone
One day, maybe time will make me
Find my way back home

Tell me where I went wrong
I'm trying hard to hold on
Just call my name and shine your light
I'll find my way back home

'Cause I know for a fact that it always comes back when it's true
'Cause I know for a fact that it always comes back when it's you
