The long summer Has gone The autumn leaves Start to fall Yesterday I was touched by the breath of winter His cold fingers searched for my heart But in my heart I felt the warmth of this summer So the first snowflakes melted away The long summer Has gone The autumn leaves Start to fall I felt the world hold its breath And everything turned slower All was silent, softened by the snow The world is going to sleep now In a freezing white coat But I know what I will see its rebirth Silently The world's breath is slow Silently The first snowflakes fall