

Clear The Clouds

Ella Langley

Falling into blue, flying to the sun
Shadows crossing paths that fly like feathers on the run
Falling into you, calling out your name
Pulling all the broken strings, my heart is not a game

I fall, I fly, I fear, I cry
I sail, I swim, I sink, I sigh

Calling for the clouds, clear away
I'm just a one bird in a million
Looking for a place to stay
You can't go the same direction
But I can't see the way, so I keep flying
On this rainy day

Now we're passing through of what will yet remain
Winds are blowing, shifting sands that never stay the same
Haven't got a clue, your lips left such a stain
Remaining a reminder that there is no one left to blame

I fall, I fly, I fear, I cry
I sail, I swim, I sink, I sigh

Calling for the clouds, clear away
I'm just a one bird in a million
Looking for a place to stay
You can't go the same direction
But I can't see the way, so I keep flying
On this rainy day

A sun burnt path across the sky
Left the shadows of your unforgiving eye
I'm further than you're ever gonna fly

Calling for the clouds, clear away
I'm just a one bird in a million
Looking for a place to stay
You can't go the same direction
But I can't see the way, so I keep flying
On this rainy day

On this rainy day
On this rainy day
