

Woman

Ellie Goulding

I been looking behind, bridge burned
I can see the flames
All these mountains were mine, returned
But things have changed
I think I'd just rather be alone, tonight
If that's ok
Honestly it was time
That made me feel like

I faced my fears 'till I made it here
Now I don't know where to stand
But I know it's not over
If I'm losing touch
If I love too much
I'll just leave it up to chance
That's just the woman

Who's always lookin' beside
My friends, have all been paid
Is the river running dry, I wish
To feel no shame
I run both my hands down
And I find, a different shape
Honestly it was time
That made me feel like

I faced my fears 'till I made it here
Now I don't know where to stand
But I know it's not over
If I'm losing touch
If I love too much
I'll just leave it up to chance
That's just the woman I am

Suddenly I see an hourglass
It's seems so still
I wake up and I'm ten years older
Times been running like sand
Free-falling through the photographs
That paid my bills
Done listening to another mans music
So I'm leaving with a drink in my hand

I faced my fears 'till I made it here
Now I don't know where to stand
But I know it's not over
If I'm losing touch
If I love too much
I'll just leave it up to chance
(That's just the woman I am)
If I'm losing touch
If I love too much
That's just the woman I am
