She took the Oldsmobile out past Condor Avenue and she locked the car and slipped past into rythmic quietude lights burning, voice dry and hoarse I threw the screen door like a bastard back and forth the chimes fell over each other I fell onto my knees the sound of the car driving off made me feel diseased a sick shouting like you hear at the fairground now I'm picking up to put away anything of yours that's still a round I don't know what to do with your clothes or your letters it'll make a whisper out of you

She took the Oldsmobile out past Condor Avenue the fairground's lit a drunk man sitsby the gate she's driving through got his hat tipped bottle back in between his teeth looks like he's buried in the sand at the beach I can't think about you driving off to leave barely awake to take a little nap while the road is straight I wish that car had never been discoveredthey took away the bot tle and the hat he was under that's the one thing that he could never do and it'll make a whisper out of you

She took the Oldsmobile out past Condor Avenue cops were running around the scene looking for some kind of clue they ever get uptight when a moth gets crushed unless a light bulb really loved him very much I'm lying down, blowing smoke from my cigarettelittle whisper s moke signs you'll never get you're in your Oldsmobile driving by the moon headlights burning bright ahead of you and someone's burning out on Condor Avenue trying to make a whisper out of you

What a shitty thing to say did you really mean it you never said a word to me about what passed between us so now I'm leaving you alone you can do whatever the hell you want to
