

Looking for something more than you can imagine
Looking through something more than the unseen
Finding more than what you could possibly believe
Imaginary (Thunder, light, then cavalry)

I've been in search of a compass to say it's over me
Aimless in the night
I know there's truth found in the light
That smiles and gleams
Thunder, light, then cavalry

To keep a life out of place, in tune
To give me purpose and say I do
Amongst the purple and violet blue
Thunder, light, then cavalry

And if it wasn't for the fight in me
It could be something more than war and peace
Just give me something more so I believe, yeah
Thunder, light, then cavalry

I think it's stolen all my rays of passion
It's more than something, something more imaginary
Between the morning and the rings of Saturn
And yet it strikes forth
Thunder, light, then cavalry

Oh, oh, yeah, yeah
Thunder, light then cavalry
Ooh, uh, uh
Something to help my soul
Something to help my soul
(Something to help my soul)
(Something to help my soul)

And if it wasn't for the fight in me
It could be something more than war and peace
Just give me something more so I believe, yeah
Thunder, light, then cavalry

(Thunder, light, then cavalry)
Thunder, light, then cavalry
(Thunder, light, then cavalry)
Thunder, light, then cavalry
