As I awoke this evening with the smell of wood smoke clinging Like a gentle cobweb hanging upon a painted tee pee Oh I went to see my chieftain with my war lance and my woman For he told us that the yellow moon would very soon be leaving This I can't believe I said, I can't believe our warlord's dead Oh he would not leave the chosen ones to the buzzards and the soldiers guns

Oh great father of the Iroquois ever since I was young I've read the writing of the smoke and breast fed on the sound of drums  $\frac{1}{2}$

I've learned to hurl the tomahawk and ride a painted pony wild To run the gauntlet of the Sioux, to make a chieftain's daughte r mine

And now you ask that I should watch The red man's race be slowly crushed What kind of words are these to hear From Yellow Dog whom white man fears

I take only what is mine Lord, my pony, my squaw, and my child I can't stay to see you die along with my tribe's pride I go to search for the yellow moon and the fathers of our sons Where the red sun sinks in the hills of gold and the healing wa ters run

Trampling down the prairie roads leaving hoof tracks in the san  ${\tt d}$

Those who wish to follow me I welcome with my hands
I heard from passing renegades Geronimo was dead
He'd been laying down his weapons when they filled him full of lead

Now there seems no reason why I should carry on
In this land that once was my land I can't find a home
It's lonely and it's quiet and the horse soldiers are coming
And I think it's time I strung my bow and ceased my senseless r unning

For soon I'll find the yellow moon along with my loved ones Where the buffaloes graze in clover fields without the sound of guns

And the red sun sinks at last into the hills of gold And at peace does this young warrior come, with a bullet hole
