Tegernakô

Eluveitie

A folk of cheeriness and strength Content with the life they lived So-called barbarians yet with eyes cleered For what they truly need and what damn not

Free and plain

Barbarians, farmers and savages Counted as ignorant and uncivil But told to bow before the emperors throne They were at least not venal

True and plain freedom - of this natures clan True and plain pride - of this celtic clan True and plain dignity - Tegernako!

Not for riches, not for sway Not for economic benefits Met they the emperors requirements For freedom can't be bought
