Come The Meantimes

Elvis Costello

What are you going to say to me? Will you be betraying me? Come The Meantimes

Will you be deceiving me? And beyond believing in me? Come The Meantimes

He came back, (right back) And nobody blinked He came back, (right back) At least I think that he did He came back, (right back) And he ran and he hid And he muttered and moaned And said "Let's go get stoned"

Will you be denying me? Will you still come crying to me Come The Meantimes

Are you still obeying me? Will you still be praying to me? Come The Meantimes

Will you sit in judgment then? Be the first one to condemn Come The Meantimes

Now you've got nobody else to blame And trouble remembering my name Will you still be cursing me Come my anniversary Come The Meantimes

He came back, (right back) And they followed and failed He came back, (right back) He got hammered and nailed He came back, (right back) And he wandered alone They said let's gather some stones And make them atone

Now I'm in a hall of mirrors With my secret thoughts and terrors Come The Meantimes And I'm drinking to your health Find I'm only talking to myself Come The Meantimes

He came back, (right back) And nobody blinked He came back, (right back) At least I think that he did He came back, (right back) Then he ran and he hid And he muttered and moaned And said "Let's go get stoned"

Blossoms fragrant opening Poppies full of opium Come The Meantimes Phony prophets offer hope That's a different kind of dope Come The Meantimes

Right now! Right now! Right now! Gather some stones and make them atone

Come The Meantimes (Let's go get stoned) Come The Meantimes
