

Superhuman

Emeli Sandé

Oh, is it worth, baby, giving your life
To something that you wouldn't die for?
Is it worth, baby, spending your time
On something that you ain't got time for?
Is it worth, baby, shedding a tear
For someone that won't even fight for you?
Is it worth, baby, living in fear
And missing out on what would have been right for you?

Don't forget who you are
You're made up of million kind of stars
Your heart's beating faster than the light runs
Don't forget that you're a superhuman

I know it's hard, baby, keeping it real
When everybody seems to be faking
I know it's hard when it always feels Like the world keeps taking and taking
It's not easy keeping afloat
When you're drowning deep in emotions
But I think it's worth, baby, trying to keep hope
Even when life's feeling hopeless

Don't forget who you are
You're made up of million kind of stars
Your heart's beating faster than the light runs
Don't forget that you're a superhuman

Superhuman
Flesh and bones and
Raw emotion, raised endorphins
Heart keeps thumping
Oh, you're a superhuman, yeah
Oh, you're a superhuman, yeah

Don't forget who you are
You're made up of million kind of stars
Your heart's beating faster than the light runs
Don't forget that you're a superhuman

Don't forget who you are
You're made up of million kind of stars
Your heart's beating faster than the light runs
Don't forget that you're a superhuman