

Sunrise

Emily Barker

Come on baby let's get out of here
See the city fading in the rearview mirror
I got the feeling to drive all night
With the road ahead and you by my side
And all I see is you and me for miles and miles
Wanna fall asleep, wanna listen to you breathing
Wake up slowly when the sun begins to rise

Well I waited for the cloud to clear
It's been a long, cold winter without you here
Let's head on out to the beach tonight
I wanna hold you in the dying light
By water dancing, black crows threading through the sky
Wanna fall asleep, wanna listen to you breathing
Wake up slowly when the sun begins to rise

And we can fill our souls with the sound of the ocean
And dance in the summer rain
Let chaos become a distant memory
Like traffic beyond the bay

So meet me darling 'neath the quarter moon
With an old guitar and your favourite tune
You can tell me anything you need
Your bygone days, your distant dreams
For all I see is you and me for miles and miles
Wanna fall asleep, wanna listen to you breathing
Wake up slowly when the sun begins to rise

And we can fill our souls with the sound of the ocean
And dance in the summer rain
Let chaos become a distant memory
Like traffic beyond the bay

So come on baby let's get out of here
See the city fading in the rearview mirror
I got the feeling to drive all night
With the road ahead and you by my side
And all I see is you and me for miles and miles
Wanna fall asleep, wanna listen to you breathing
Wake up slowly when the sun begins to rise
I wanna fall asleep, wanna listen to you breathing
Wake up slowly when the sun begins to rise
