

A Little War

Emm Gryner

I've laid my gun to rest below my feet
I've forgotten how to fire, can you hear me?
I've dulled down my tongue,
visited the other side I'm waving white, mad and sorry but you don't hear me

All I've given
has changed along the way
All I've told you,
you think I never meant to say

Any love remaining,
I can't share anymore
By the time it gets to you
it's a little war

I hear the calm outside, knowing we'll never touch I've laid it down
You should try to wear my love, I have I'll always have for you I've kissed you in my mind kissed you goodbye

All I've given
has changed along the way
All I've told you,
you think I never meant to say

Any love remaining
I won't share anymore
By the time it gets to you
it's a little war

I've laid my gun down

All I said, I know was true you think I'm clever enough to say Any love remaining,
I don't share anymore
By the time it gets to you, it's a little war.
