

Don't Come Home

Emma Blackery

It's so hard to say the words for what I mean
'Cause I've spent the last few months disappearing
And it's so hard to say goodbye when you're not leaving
And you'll always wait for me to come home

And I can always count on you to take the blame
I say that things will change but things will always stay the same
I can see it in your eyes you wanna go
But you'll always wait for me to come home
And you'll always wait for me to come home

So tell me why you stay at all
You'd be better off alone
You stick around to watch it fall
Even when I'm building up these walls
If you're not there when I get back tonight
I won't protest, I will not fight
Just don't come home
I know you wanna but don't come home

I was blinded by the fire in your eyes
So I screamed and tore you down until it died
And it's so hard to get it back once it's gone
But you'll always wait for me to come home
And you'll always wait for me to come home

So tell me why you stay at all
You'd be better off alone
You stick around to watch it fall
Even when I'm building up these walls
If you're not there when I get back tonight
I won't protest, I will not fight
Just don't come home
I know you wanna but don't come home

I don't want you around for me to bring you down
I don't want you to stay for me to push you away
I know you wanna but don't come home
I know you wanna but don't come home

So tell me why you stay at all
You'd be better off alone
You stick around to watch it fall
Even when I'm building up these walls
If you're not there when I get back tonight
I won't protest, I will not fight
Just don't come home
I know you wanna but don't come home
