

Prize Hunter

Emma Pollock

I didn't know the trouble I was causing
Didn't know that I could do that
I didn't know the trouble I was causing
Didn't know that I could do that be that

Found a friend, weathered and worn
Shattered from storms, all tethered and torn
Loved to hide in the tightest corner
I was concerned it could live no longer

Tell me what does a rainbow sound like?
Start at the beginning until you sing sunlight
As the boy is gifted with ascension
The man drops dead on the rocks of pretension

Came inside my room for shelter
Landed on my chest, all better now
Came in through the window, looking
To escape the test pushing on you
Looking for the hunter but the harness fell
The harness fell

Let me count the ways to impress you
Sitting on my shelf my accumulated wealth
All the words and numbers you could want
But I sometimes ask if they endanger my health

Sick and tired of promises sold
Chasing to deliver but now I'm getting old
Not allowed to start complaining
Should I just wait for you to call my name then?

Came inside my room for shelter
Landed on my chest, all better now
Came in through the window, looking
To escape the test pushing on you
Looking for the hunter but the harness fell
The harness fell

Let me out
Let me shout for you
Make us whole
Make us follow through

Came inside my room for shelter
Landed on my chest, all better now
Came in through the window, looking
To escape the test pushing on you
Looking for the hunter but the harness fell
The harness fell
