

What It's Worth

Engineers

So you take something that you have to say and you throw some part of your love away Then be naive, thinking that your luck has changed
It won't stop here, staking all you knew

Dismiss your one great fear inside
but don't deny your history.
Tell me what you want to see
I'm never going back for what it's worth

Now you wake and stifle words you have to say and you know someone took your trust away Can you be clear? Thinking got the best of you Just what do you fear? Being someone new

Dismiss your one great fear inside
but don't deny your history.
Tell me what you want to see
I'm never going back for what it's worth