

Rectify

English Dogs

You know the painful truth but you get comfort from their lies
When the impossible is asked for, when the nightmare feeling will rise

I arise.

I've had as many names as there has been as many years time to die.

The spine the mountains hang on, the lungs that breathe the cold wind in,

The tears the rivers cry.

The wolf that kills the stag.

The hawk that kills the mouse.

The spider kills the fly.

I am all of them.

The stag killed by the wolf.

The mouse killed by the hawk.

The fly, I untamed and untameable.

Summon me I'll rectify all injustice I'll rectify all you need

I'll rectify all injustice by summoning me

I'll rectify all injustice I'll rectify all you see

I'll rectify all by summoning me

Your grief, it's your disease, I'll see what I can do.

Your bleeding heart, will it start failing, she's fading fast.

On your last, waning, dissolving, melt away.

Will you still say you can believe?

I've had as many names as there has been as many years time to die

The thing with two heads, it eats its own tail,

And the cycle eternally thrives.

You cannot hold on

So you call me in desperation.

The wolf that kills the stag

The hawk that kills the mouse

The spider kills the fly

I am all of them.

The stag killed by the wolf

The mouse killed by the hawk

The fly, I untamed and untameable.

Summon me I'll rectify all injustice I'll rectify all you need

I'll rectify all injustice by summoning me

I'll rectify all injustice I'll rectify all you see

I'll rectify all by summoning me