Thought we had a grudge against Our friends who live beyond the fence Victims of a circumstance or Wrters of our fate? Proud enough to cast a stone But not enough to lose our homes Now it's done we have been shown The things that were at stake Should have stopped to think about it Would have brought to mind our doubts I wish the silent ones had shouted At us to our face Would we even listen then Or could we only see the damage When the dust had settled And we finally saw the waste?

(Chorus)

Hey ho the wind has blown Won the war Now there's nothing to show Seeds sown time to grow No more stones to throw

Now it's time to reap the corn But no one's left to grow it for I'm knockin' on my neighbor's door Alas, to no reply Now I want to live in peace But no one's here to live with me I should have learned of harmony Before I took a side Situation took ahold of Common sense and wouldn't go Although I know we should have known The error of our ways All alone at dinnertime No one's left to drink my wine As I propose a toast to Every family that paid

(Chorus)
