

Absolute Zero

Entheos

Sorrow and regret
Tormented mind swells
One with the darkness
Pain like second skin
Forged by the calling of a parallel life
Where every being is not born to die

The voices in the distance
They call out for me
Yes, they call me by name
As the light drains from my eyes
And my memory dims
Following down the spiral
Still walking the earth
The ghost of every memory
That I have left behind

Like sand, it runs through my fingers
Colder than time
With death's still gaze cast toward me
I am alive
Alive

Now I am pulling myself back out of the grave
In the days I am living, this is not a life
We weren't meant to be saved
I will be the one you see when you die
Burning in your mind
Just like the flame
I may have been breathing
I was never alive
So, remember these words
I will be the one you see when you die

Daylight
Returns
Slowly

I'm losing sight of who I am
In this madness
The candle's been burnt out
For what seems like forever
If there's no end to life or death
In this nightmare
Do we live forever?

And with every last breath in my lungs
There is still hope for us here
In the mouth of madness
As the light drains from my eyes
And as my memory dims
Now I am alive
In dreams of the ocean
Where space and time won't matter
In dreams of the daylight
I am alive

In death's gaze
I am alive

Watch every nightmare turn into a new reality

Mother, will I breathe again?
Mother, will I breathe again?
Mother, will I breathe again?
Mother, is this life all I have?

Mother
And in the end, the end is this life
Just a vision I will forget, Mother?
And in the end, the end is this life
Just a vision I will forget, Mother?
And in the end, the end is this life
Just a vision I will forget, Mother?
Just a vision
