

Praying And Believing

Erica Campbell

I think it's me that I've been lying to
About what I've been going through
And putting all the blame on you
Then I pretend to fix it on my own
Placing myself up on your throne
I did this to myself and by myself alone
And if I'm honest, I know that
My life's been slowly falling under the weather
Lord knows...

That I'm praying and believing for healing
Said I'm praying and believing for healing
Said I'm praying and believing for healing

Years go on and days keep floating by Losing so much more than time
But lives and souls and hopes and people left behind
Boys are growing into angry men
Girls grow up just wondering
What's real in love and life
What do we believe in
But we all know that this world's
Been slowly falling under the weather
Lord knows...

That I'm praying and believing for healing
Said I'm praying and believing for healing
Said I'm praying and believing for healing

He's the answer, He's the way
He's the potter, we're the clay
He gave us all authority
To defeat our enemies
So Father, Father, now we pray
Send your healing right away
As we bow down at His feet
I pray for you, you pray for me

Praying for you
Praying for you
Praying for you
Praying for you
Praying for you
Praying for you
Praying for you
Praying for you
Praying for you
Praying for you
Praying for you
Praying for you
Praying praying I'm praying for you

Ooh ooh

I'm praying and believing for healing
Praying and believing for healing
Praying and believing for your complete transformation, complete restoration
Praying and believing for healing

Ooh ooh
