

Cupido Stupido

Erin McKeown

Da da da da da da da dah
Da da da da dah
Da da da da da da da dah
Da da da da dah

Across a kitchen table
In a mess of cooks cooking
You slung your arrow
When I wasn't look looking
My heart it didn't flutter
My gun stayed in its holster
I walked out of that room
With a shaft stuck in my shoulder

Da da da da da da da dah
Da da da da dah
Da da da da da da da dah
Da da da da dah

The signs were signing early
When we couldn't stop talk talking
We passed a perfect day
Without the clock tick tick tocking
My heartbeat didn't skip
It was already broken
The bow can't aim itself
When the bullseye thinks it's joking

Da da da da da da da dah
Da da da da dah
Da da da da da da da dah
Da da da da dah

I like to think I am the one that got away
I like to think that I am 21st century
Too sharp to fall for that ancient mythic shit
How could someone so smart be so suddenly stupid
To think somehow I would reinvent cupid

Da da da da da da da dah
Da da da da dah
Da da da da da da da dah
Da da da da dah

Across a late spring bed
In a cabin begged and borrowed
I grabbed that arrowhead
And pulled it back out of my collar