

That's When It's Coming Home To You

Ernest Tubb

For a million of lies that you told me
And the millions of nights I've waited for you
Now you'll find out someday for every wrong you pay
And that's when it's coming home to you

You said that you loved me and always would be true
But how could you love me keep hurting me the way you do

For the millions of heartaches you've caused me
And the millions of tears I've shed over you
It's all been so unfair but someday I won't care
And that's when it's coming home to you

It never bothered you to see me sit and cry
But you laughed and said it's best for us to say goodbye

For a million of lies that you told me
And the millions of nights I've waited for you
Now you'll find out someday for every wrong you pay
And that's when it's coming home to you

Now you had money to pay for every little spree
But money can never pay for the dirty ways you treated me

For the millions of heartaches you've caused me
And the millions of tears I've shed over you
It's all been so unfair but someday I won't care
And that's when it's coming home to you
