I've seen the eyes of men turn from blue to gray I've felt their hearts stand still from life to death Truth is something lost beyond the grave Corrupted thoughts now hold us in chains This is our chance to rise Before the building crumbles, before we die Hand and hand join us together this last second Let's reconcile what was this place and rebuild the bridge That joins us We're reaching out and hoping for something to hold us still Searching for something an answer to nothing to make this Your life meant more to me than this world in its entirety Before the building crumbles, before we die Join us together this last second Join us one last time Hand and hand Forever.
