Vague Suspicions

Esperanza Spalding

On the neon news they won't be talking bout his life Flowers still unfolding when he had to fly Toward, toward God

May this war end, Insha'Allah, he knelt to pray When a dusty troop misjudged and blew him away Strangers, same God

They are faceless numbers in the headlines we've all read Drone strike leaves thirteen civilians dead Hold that thought, My God

Maybe your heart is seized with passing pity for the dead And vague suspicions creep into your head Am I part of war? And what is God for? Next on channel four, celebrity gossip
