

False Promises And You

Evan Honer

I told you that I'd go to your graduation
You told me that you'd be at my first show
I told you that I loved you with no hesitation
And you told me that you knew awhile ago

Dying flowers in the hall with no sun to see
And paintings on your wall that I can still remember
And evenings doing nothing made it easier to breathe
Made a lot of plans, left too early to complete

False promises and you
Fill me up with all you said you'd do
Empty words are getting common
Can you un-meet my mom and
Can you tell her the truth?

I showed you almost every song I wrote
Kept the ones about you hidden between the paper and the ink
'Cause history repeats itself, and I thought this time it won't
But liquor and your lies pours an awfully heavy drink

You told me that you've already fallen for me
You were drunk enough to say it
And I was drunk enough to believe
And now I'm lying in my bed next to where you'll never sleep

False promises and you
Fill me up with all you said you'd do
Empty words are getting common
Can you un-meet my mom and
Can you tell her the truth?

'Cause I got caught up with the thought of you
Mesmerized by every word you used
But they were

False promises it's true
Fill me up with all you said you'd do
Leave me so confused
Empty words are getting common
Can you un-meet my mom and
Can you tell her the truth?
