

Green Lantern

Even Rude

I guess God couldn't see you through the cloudy, grey sky.
Everything is wet and my eyes are bright.
I could see the sun below a denim shade,
and if I lose my sight than that's the price I'll pay.

Green lantern, a superlight, please don't hurt me anymore, I'm crawling to you and oh she's super right.

She's laying open and he's laying low. His biggest fear is her greatest dream.
She's no worse, for the moment, keeping secrets in her pocket,
holes won't save.
And he's still trying to find the hero in you.

It's on in me, you'll be all I need. You'll be safe and sound,
when you go down.

Consequences sit behind me on this ride.
Morals are make-believe and the guilt just died.
Excuses are everywhere but not to blame.
My bloated ego will be dripping in fame.

See

His bloody caution laying on the floor.
He finally caved and gave her what she desired.
He can't erase and start it, fresh from insecure.
He gave until his innocence couldn't give anymore.

It's on in me, you'll be all I need. You'll be safe and sound,
when you go down.