

It Remembers

Every Time I Die

I brought a rumor when I came down from the mountain
That spread quicker than the fire in your eyes.
Heaven won't let me in. I took my medicine.
Salt water couldn't quench my thirst at the fountain.

Burn slow.
There's no rush.
You're right.
Always right.

I want oblivion all the time,
I want oblivion all the time.
Mindless son of the eternal shine,
Mindless son of the eternal shine.

It snuck up like a desert wind.
I got a feeling I won't feel again.
When faith abandons me
I hope it does it honestly.

I still howl like an animal in the darkness
And I'm reminded by the blood on my clothes.
I can't stand what I've become.
I'm shivering to spite the sun.
We come together
And were overwhelmed by the loneliness.

I want oblivion all the time,
I want oblivion all the time.
I want oblivion all the time,
I want oblivion.

Burn slow.
There's no rush.
You're right.
Always right.

I thought I settled my debts
That night on the ride home.
But I have still got hell to pay.