Illusions Of Grandeur

Evocation

I hit the wal and ram it down reload and then decide to drown in fire after life and slowly then from flames I will arise

I puppet, march for war wit no lines, it faceless made my game in bended time, in darkened mind and most in blood enrolled my march for death I will return as king frown crowded fields that I burnt the airless that I breathe this fiction I force myself to see the pointless in my belief and how my lust for life went gone

I crush my cage and rage for cause to find what splits my world death is real and life is hard and I found what pain was for