Survival Of The Sickest

Evocation

I shut down as we entered the conflict zone My fragile borders silently collapsed Evangelists that hang up high in constant rows The underworld has lost its sacred fence They lost their pride and glory under a shaded sun The opposites now known to be the blame They lost their oracle to the lords of sins The pillars of creation were silenced when they set them all af ire A new world has risen beyond the red eclipse Its pragmatism illuminate what overlords has built Sucked in to its silent orb, its everlasting blaze We're observing the survival of the sickest Now hail to the mortals The children of stone And death became their truth When bastards rule their throne

So dark this side of story and all loaded guns The parasites now known to gained control They killed their oracle with a dirty win The pillars of creation were silenced when they set them all af ire