

Hold Back Your Fear

Exit Eden

I was born in sorrow
Raised with dignity
Didn't steel nor borrow
Blessed with honesty

Chosen by the angels
To scar history
Never feared the danger
So it's said 'bout me

Just another needless battle
Countless men die innocent
Close your eyes try to forget
But the pictures are still there

Filled with loss and pain and hunger
Sure to be defeated
No way to withstand alive
Till a savior will arrive

In times of desperation
Oppression and frustration
I knew that it was up to me

Hold back your fear
They won't take our pride away
Hold back your fear
We will see the break of day
We choose to fight not to resign
For our ancestors divine
Hold back your fear
To achieve our long lost victory

Only one could bring salvation
Save us from our destiny
Guided by the call of saints
Pouring oil into the flames
Vested in a suit of armor
To defend the motherland
On a white horse mounted high
With a banner to the sky

I led the troops in favor
Of them to be their savior
With faith and trust they followed me

Hold back your fear
They won't take our pride away
Hold back your fear
We will see the break of day
We choose to fight not to resign
For our ancestors divine
Hold back your fear
To achieve our long lost victory

I was born with reason
Gained a fateful gift

With a boundless credence
Put my life at risk
Wounded in the battle
Nearly saw the light
Braced up in the saddle
To proceed the fight

Hold back your fear
Hold back your fear
We choose to fight not to resign
Hold back your fear
To achieve our long lost victory
Our long lost victory
It's our victory
