Heliotropic

Failure

Right now, we're sick of everything Tonight, we'll bind up our brains again With eyes pinned, I'll fly around on your bed We'll grow close, while our hearts disconnect.

Morning, is limping into the room Pleading, that we blind ourselves again Rip out, that heliotropic rose Back off, please let the lost get lost

I know my faith has meaning But I've forgotten why It's so important to me I can't remember why

Living a phantasm of the nerves
Girlfriend's chemicals in your head
Good days eventually oxidize
Put them with thoughts that escape your mind's eye

I know my faith has meaning
But I've forgotten why
It's so important to me
I can't remember why
Seems like I'm fucked forever
Seems like at least right now
I forgot why, I need to fill this space.
