John Barleycorn

Fairport Convention

There were three men come out of the west, their fortunes for t o try And these three men made a solemn vow, John Barleycorn would di They've ploughed, they've sown, they've harrowed, thrown clods upon his head Till these three men were satisfied John Barleycorn was dead There's beer all in the barrel and brandy in the glass But little Sir John, with his nutbrown bowl, proved the strongest man at last They've let him lie for a long long time till the rains from he aven did fall And little Sir John sprang up his head and so amazed them all They've let him stand till midsummer's day and he looks both pa le and wan Then little Sir John's grown a long long beard and so become a man There's beer all in the barrel and brandy in the glass But little Sir John, with his nutbrown bowl, proved the strongest man at last There's beer all in the barrel and brandy in the glass But little Sir John, with his nutbrown bowl, proved the strongest man at last They've hired men with the sharpedged scythes to cut him off at the knee They've rolled him and tied him around the waist, treated him m ost barbarously They've hired men with the sharpedged forks to prick him to the heart And the loader has served him worse than that for he's bound hi m to the cart So they've wheeled him around and around the field till they've come unto a barn And here they've kept their solemn word concerning Barleycorn They've hired men with the crab tree sticks to split him skin f rom bone And the miller has served him worse than that for he's ground h im between two stones There's beer all in the barrel and brandy in the glass

But little Sir John, with his nutbrown bowl, proved the strongest man at last There's beer all in the barrel and brandy in the glass But little Sir John, with his nutbrown bowl, proved the strongest man at last

And the huntsman he can't hunt the fox nor loudly blow his horn And the tinker he can't mend his pots without John Barleycorn
