If everything turns into nothing, will you have anything to sho w
Will you be left alone
If this day were just a memory, how would you view it
How would you view yourself

R:

We should live our lives the way that we want It $\square$ s okay to think about yourself, if it makes you happy We should treat each day as if we only have one It $\square$ s okay to think about yourself

If tomorrow never happens, where will you find yourself at the end of today

If everything turns into nothing, how will you view it

How will you view yourself

R:

Too many people strive to be what others tell them to be That means nothing
All those people misunderstanding
The point is, they should be themselves
Just be yourself

R:

Think about yourself
