

Summer Song

Falling Up

Born to the earth
Walking the way of a father
He knew lakes and storms
He knew all the heartaches they brought him
He had a pain in his head
From a fixated light
There's a child in his arms
With pretty green eyes

So she slept in a bed
Made in a different room
She dreamt of aero space planes
And fell in spells of neon futures
She had a pain in her head
From a fixated light
And waves of distance cut deep like a lonely night

He lives in a different time
And she's lost in a different life
He was born in a different body
And he'll never find her

He had this dream
He was in love with a face that he didn't know
She had this dream
She was back in the halls of the church
Where there were hundreds of us
We were bowing in awe
Then the earth opened wide and swallowed them both, then they woke