

Duality Of Intent

Fallujah

Untie the twisting lines in my head
My nature will nurture every impulse arising from the depths
Of my internal ambivalence
Duality of my intent

Back and forth, we swing again
The enemy of my ascent
Lies within my consciousness

Intrinsic shadow under my skin
Focus swept in by the undertow
Torn in two, twin sides of a severed soul
Fighting through disorder and chaos
Cycles of weakness and control

Symbiotic pull of opposite forces at rest
Recurring process of rebalancing
Navigating and calibrating
This inner dichotomy

Fracturing mind of the mortal mentality
Colliding forces of creation
Through dissonant unification
A paradox assimilated

Subconscious animal in my head
Voice of temptation, apathy and instinctual thirst
Desire turning into regret
Duality of my intent

Back and forth, we swing again
The enemy of my ascent
Lies within my consciousness
It lies within