

The Dead Mouse One

Father John Misty

A stupid little heartbreak
I knew you for a day
Brought you a little water
And called you by your name
And hoped you were only trembling
Cause you were lost and so afraid

My stupid little heart aches
You let my touch your face
But I knew something wasn't right
When you didn't run away
Didn't mind [?]
But the handyman just had to [?]

A silly little circus
Under the acacia tree
Two handfuls of dirt
I sang this melody
And then went back to my little life
Ignoring human tragedy
